

God Can Use

cheryl anne day-swallow

July 27th 2025

Right now all my recording gear is in Georgia. We are packed waiting for our home to sell in Florida. I don't want to miss out on writing music. It is helping my brain heal. So after some prayer, I decided well I have no recording gear here, but there is internet help/programs available to me. So I am pulling recourses and learning new things, to continue to create my songs.

I write my words and then use music software to create new sounds and tempos that I like. Music should be fun and informative and tell a story.

This song is a result of learning. God expects us to learn, grow, change improve all aspects of our life. So why would my music be any different?

2 Peter 1:6

Next, learn to put aside your own desires so that you will become patient and godly, gladly letting God have his way with you.

James 1:2-4

Dear brothers, is your life full of difficulties and temptations? Then be happy, for when the way is rough, your patience has a chance to grow. So let it grow, and don't try to squirm out of your problems. For when your patience is finally in full bloom, then you will be ready for anything, strong in character, full and complete.

God Can Use cheryl anne day-swallow

July 27th 2025

[Verse 1]

In this fast-paced world, I'm falling behind,
Chasing shadows of dreams that are hard to find.
Every tick of the clock feels like a mile,
Working on my music, still pushing my style.
Notes flying by me in a whirlwind race,
Trying to find my rhythm,
can't keep up the pace.
Struggling with the pressure,
drowning in the noise,
Wishing for a moment, just to hear my voice.

[Chorus]

God can use what was meant for evil,
And turn it into something good, it's true.
Every struggle, every fight we face,
Can lead us to a path that's bright and new.
God can use each one of us, if we ask Him to,
So tell me, what's your excuse?

[Verse 2]

Learning this computer, a digital maze,
It's sucking all my time in a digital haze.
Every click, every pause,
feels like I'm losing ground,
But writing these songs is where my heart is found.
Pouring out my feelings, laying bare my soul,
Hoping that the music will make me whole.
What's on my mind, I'm eager to share,
But the clock keeps ticking, life's not always fair.

[Verse 3]

It doesn't matter how you sing your song,
Just keep your faith, and you can't go wrong.
Ask God to bless it, give it all you've got,
He'll guide your steps and turn the dark to light.
Moving through the trials,
don't let them bring you down,
With every note you play,
wear your courage like a crown.
Sing through the struggle, lift your voice strong,
For in every heartbeat,
you'll find where you belong.

[Chorus]

God can use what was meant for evil,
And turn it into something good, it's true.
Every struggle, every fight we face,
Can lead us to a path that's bright and new.
God can use each one of us, if we ask Him to,
So tell me, what's your excuse?

[Outro]

So here I stand, amidst the chaos and strife,
Recording my journey, it's more than a life.
With every note I share, I feel the love unfold,
God's hand on my journey, guiding me bold.
So let the music play, let the stories be told,
In this fast-paced world, watch this heart unfold.